Thanks Donn;

One more thing – on the “What is the current site status?”, it says

“EPA and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers are maintaining the cap, which is containing dioxin-contaminated material. A special permits evaluation process governs activities at a water body area around the site. EPA has completed a remedial investigation for the site. Feasibility study activities are underway.”

That is not correct; it should say:

“The Potentially Responsible Parties are maintaining the cap under EPA oversight. The cap is designed to contain dioxin-contaminated material in the waste pits. A special permits evaluation process governs activities at a water body area around the site. EPA has completed a remedial investigation for the site. Feasibility study activities are underway.”

Thanks Donn
